A Halloween is also celebrated in other countries, but it's not as big as in the United States, even in the countries where the traditions began.

B They hoped any ghosts they met would think they were ghosts too and would leave them alone.

- C Americans and Canadians have adopted Halloween in a big way.
- D These traditions were in practice as early as the 12th century.
- E This is another tradition that began in Europe, this time in England.
- F They hoped it would scare the ghosts and other spirits and make them go away.

Halloween

October 31st is Halloween and is now celebrated in many countries around the world, but do you know anything about the origins of this scary special day? Read the article and find out.

The origins of Halloween

If you think of Halloween, you probably think of scary carved pumpkins, all kinds of fancy dress and children asking for sweets. And if you think of a country that celebrates Halloween, you probably think of the United States first. _____ However, Halloween traditions actually come from 16th-century Ireland, Scotland and England.

The tradition of Halloween on 31st October comes from the ancient Celtic festival of Samhain. Samhain was the Celtic New Year and they celebrated it on 1st November because that was the end of summer and harvest time (life) and the beginning of winter (death). During this period the people held feasts in honour of the departed souls that entered our realm. Alongside the souls of the deceased³, it was believed that various supernatural beings made their way to us as well and not all of them were good. People therefore wore special clothes made of animal skin and hoped to be safe from the ghosts and the winter. In AD 609, the Catholic Church

³ die Verstorbenen, i morti, ils morts

put the Christian celebration of All Saints Day on 1st November. In AD 1000, the church added All Souls Day on 2nd November, and All Hallows Eve – or Halloween – moved to the night of the 31st October.

Pumpkins

The Celts carved faces into vegetables like turnips, potatoes and squash (a pumpkin is a kind of squash). _____ It was sometimes called a jack-o'-lantern because of an Irish story about a man, Jack. He played a trick on the devil and then had to walk the earth for all time as a punishment. Irish people who came to live in the United States in the 1800s found pumpkins much easier to carve, and the tradition became the one we see today.

Fancy dress

The Celts were afraid of the ghosts that came on Samhain. So if they went outside after dark, they covered their faces with masks. _____ In early America, the Native Americans and the first Europeans celebrated the end of the harvest, but not Halloween. When Irish people arrived, the harvest festival started to look more like Halloween and it became popular across the country. In the late 19th century, people tried to make Halloween less about ghosts and religion and more about celebrating the season with a party for neighbours and family. That's why Americans today wear all kinds of Halloween costumes and not just scary things like witches and ghosts like in other countries.

Trick or treat

_____ When the church introduced All Souls Day, rich people gave poor people 'soul cakes', a small cake made with spices and raisins. It replaced the Celtic tradition of leaving food outside houses for the ghosts. 'Going a-souling' was popular in England for hundreds of years until about the 1930s. The Americans kept the tradition, but today children knock on people's doors and ask for sweets. Going trick or treating is so popular that a quarter of the sweets for the year in the United States are sold for this one day.

The rest of the world

Halloween has become the United States' second-biggest commercial festival after Christmas. _____ Mexico celebrates the Day of the Dead from 31st October to 2nd November and some of its traditions, like giving gifts of sugar skulls, are starting to mix with Halloween. In this way, the celebration of Halloween continues to change as new traditions join the oldest of the Celtic ones.
